About This Module

This module is carefully prepared based on the new educational curriculum of our country, Ethiopia. The writers managed to refer to number of books and related resources to enrich the module so as to fit the academic performances of special boarding and non-boarding secondary school students in and outside ASTUSS. The main objectives of preparing this module is to help our students grasp basic English grammar rules and help them easily tackle National Examination questions and score better result in this subject. The module covers majority of grammar aspects in English language. Moreover, it contains more than 600 questions with their answer key. Students are advised to attempt the questions before they refer to the answers key.

Introduction

Learning the English language is crucial for various reasons, as it is one of the most widely spoken languages globally and serves as a lingua franca in many fields. It is considered the global language of communication. It is spoken by over 1.5 billion people worldwide, making it a common language for international business, diplomacy, tourism, and academia. Proficiency in English allows individuals to communicate effectively with people from diverse backgrounds and cultures.

Moreover, English is often the language of instruction in secondary schools and universities of the world. Proficiency in English opens up opportunities for students to pass national examinations successfully and study at prestigious institutions globally.

Hence assisting and motivating students is believed to be highly decisive not only pass the national examination but also produces competent students internationally. Preparing and providing teaching materials like this is among the most important things language teachers should perform. Therefore, this module was organized as a supplementary material in addition to their actual text book.

CHAPTER-ONE: WORDS CATEGORY

Learning Outcomes: At the end of this unit, you're expected to:

- ✚ Identify and classify different types of nouns (common, proper, concrete, abstract, collective).
- ✚ Understand the function of nouns in a sentence (subject, object, possessive).
- ✚ Understand how pronouns replace nouns in a sentence to avoid repetition.
- ✚ Use pronouns accurately to maintain coherence in writing.
- ✚ Understand verb tenses and their usage in expressing time and continuity.
- ✚ Understand the degrees of comparison (positive, comparative, superlative) used with adjectives
- ✚ Use adjectives appropriately to add detail and specificity to writing.
- ✚ Learn common prepositions and their usage in expressing location, time, direction, etc.

1.1. Nouns

Student, can you define what a noun is? What about Types of Nouns?

Definition of Nouns

✚ Any member of a class of words that typically can be combined with determiners to serve as the subject of a verb, can be interpreted as singular or plural, can be replaced with a pronoun, and refer to an entity, quality, state, action, or concept. (Merriam Webster Dictionary)

Nouns are words that represent a person, place, thing, or idea. They can be concrete, such as a dog or a tree, or abstract, such as happiness or freedom. Nouns can also represent a group or category of things, such as animals or furniture. In a sentence, nouns can play the role of subject, direct object, indirect object, subject complement, object complement, appositive, or modifier.

1.1.1 Types of Nouns

Based on things they replace; nouns can be divided as follows.

a. Proper

Proper nouns refer to specific individuals, places, or organizations and are always capitalized. For example: John, Paris, and Microsoft.

b. Common Nouns

Common nouns, on the other hand, refer to general categories or classes of things and are not capitalized unless they begin a sentence. For example: cat, city, and company.

c. Collective Nouns

Collective nouns are used to refer to a group of items or individuals as a single unit. Examples include: herd (of animals), team (of players), and fleet (of ships). These nouns can be singular or plural depending on whether the group is being considered as a single entity or as individual members.

d. Concrete Nouns

Concrete nouns are tangible objects that can be perceived with our senses. For example: chair, table, and car.

e. Abstract Nouns

Abstract nouns are nouns that refer to intangible concepts or ideas that cannot be perceived with our senses. For example: love, happiness, and freedom.

1.1.2. Basic Characteristics of Nouns

Dear, Student, What parameters do you use to tell whether a given word is noun or not?

No worries! Just read the following briefings!

☞ Nouns have the following common features that can help as distinguish them from the other word class.

- ✓ Nouns have usually plural and singular form

Countable nouns can be classified as singular and plural nouns. That mean plural nouns can be inflected for a number. For example, the noun child is singular while children is its plural form. The noun boy is singular and boys is its plural form.

✓ Nouns can be preceded by articles ad determiners

Eg: a book, eight birds, few people, etc.

✓ Nouns can serve as a subject or object in a sentence

Eg. Roman has bought a jacket.

✓ Nouns have possessive form

Arega's brother..., Giraffe's tail..., Students' cafeteria...

1.2. Adjectives

Adjectives are the words that describe nouns. An adjective usually goes right before the noun it's describing. However, sometimes, adjectives can appear at the end of a sentence

My dog is black.

I have a black dog.

Margot wore a beautiful hat to the pie-eating contest.

a. Furry dogs may overheat in the summertime.

b. My cake should have sixteen candles.

c. The scariest villain of all time is Darth Vader.

In the sentences above, the adjectives are easy to spot because they come immediately before the nouns they modify.

1.2.1 Major characteristics of Adjectives

Almost all adjectives share the following common characteristics

➤ Adjectives always tell us something about the noun.

Eg. She has bought a brown jacket.

➤ They can be used in positive, comparative or superlative degrees.

Eg. Kume is tall.

Kume is taller than her friend, Yeshi.

Kume is the tallest of all students in the class.

➤ Majority of them can be preceded by the word “very”, which is another adjective.

Eg. very heavy. very big, very interesting

- Adjectives do not inflect for tenses, numbers and cases.

1.2.2 Order of Adjectives in a sentence

In English grammar, the order of adjectives in a sentence is a specific sequence that native speakers naturally follow when multiple adjectives are used to describe a noun. Adjectives can be categorized into different types based on their function or meaning, such as opinion, size, age, shape, color, origin, material, and purpose. When multiple adjectives are used together to describe a noun, they generally follow a specific order to ensure clarity and natural flow in the sentence.

The typical order of adjectives in English is as follows:

1. Opinion: This refers to the speaker's opinion or evaluation of the noun. Examples include beautiful, ugly, nice, delicious, etc.
2. Size: Adjectives that indicate the size of the noun come next. Examples include small, large, tiny, huge, etc.
3. Age: Adjectives denoting the age of the noun follow size. Examples include old, young, ancient, new, etc.
4. Shape: Adjectives describing the shape of the noun come after age. Examples include round, square, rectangular, etc.
5. Color: Adjectives indicating the color of the noun follow shape. Examples include red, blue, green, etc.
6. Origin: Adjectives that specify the origin or source of the noun come next. Examples include Italian, Chinese, American, etc.
7. Material: Adjectives denoting the material or composition of the noun follow origin. Examples include wooden, metallic, cotton, etc.
8. Purpose or Qualifier: Adjectives indicating the purpose or qualifier for the noun come last. Examples include cooking (as in cooking oil), wedding (as in wedding dress), etc.

1.2.3 Degrees of adjectives

Adjectives come in three forms, known as degrees: absolute, comparative, and superlative.

Absolute adjectives describe something in its own right.

A cool guy

An awful situation

A messy desk

Garrulous squirrels

A rigid guideline

A mischievous cat

Comparative adjectives, unsurprisingly, make a comparison between two or more things. For most one-syllable adjectives, the comparative is formed by adding the suffix -er (or just -r if the adjective already ends with an e).

For two-syllable adjectives, some use -er to form the comparative while others use the word more.

In general, two-syllable adjectives ending in -er, -le, -ow, -ure, or -y can be made comparative by adding -er (in the case of -y words, replace y with -ier).

For adjectives of three or more syllables, add the word more.

A cooler guy

A more awful situation

A messier desk

A more mischievous cat

A more rigid guideline

More garrulous squirrels

- Superlative adjectives indicate that something has the highest degree of the quality in question. One-syllable adjectives become superlatives by adding the suffix -est (or just -st for adjectives that already end in e). As with the comparative, some two-syllable adjectives use -est to form the superlative while others use the word most.
- In general, two-syllable adjectives ending in -y replace -y with -iest. Adjectives of three or more syllables add the word most. When you use an article with a superlative adjective, it will almost always be the definite article (the) rather than a or an.

Examples

a. The coolest guy

d. The most awful situation

b. The messiest desk

e. The most mischievous cat

c. The most rigid guideline

f. The most garrulous squirrels

Exercise 1 Answers with explanation

1. A) as / as

Explanation: The phrase "I don't have as much time for reading as I would like to" correctly compares the amount of time available to the desired amount.

2. D) most spoken

Explanation: "English is today the third most spoken native language" is the correct form to indicate ranking without the definite article "the."

3. B) more frequent

Explanation

As the finals approached, the students' sleepless nights increased in frequency. The phrase "more frequent" indicates a comparative increase in the frequency of the sleepless nights as the finals drew nearer. This choice effectively conveys the idea that the occurrence of sleepless nights among the students intensified as they approached their final exams.

In this context, using "more frequent" helps to emphasize the escalating nature of the situation, highlighting that the students experienced a higher number of sleepless nights as they neared their finals compared to previous periods.

Explanation: "My students' sleepless nights became more frequent as the finals approached" indicates an increase in frequency.

4. D) so vicious as

Explanation: "It is not so vicious as many people believe" correctly compares the hyena's nature to the belief of people.

5. A) too / to

Explanation

The sentence should read: "The cupboard was too big to fit through the door, so we had to take it apart first."

In this sentence, "too" is used to indicate an excessive amount or degree, while "to" is a preposition that precedes the infinitive verb "fit." The combination of "too" and "to" in this context conveys the idea that the cupboard's size was too large for it to pass through the door without being disassembled first.

"The cupboard was too big to fit through the door" indicates that the size of the cupboard prevented it from fitting.

6. Answer: B) as much as

Explanation:

The sentence describes the extent of the tree's roots spreading in all directions, emphasizing a measurable distance (thirty meters). The phrase "as much as" is used to express this extent or quantity, making it the most appropriate choice.

A) too much : This implies excess, which doesn't fit the context here.

C) so much : While "so much" can emphasize degree, it requires additional context (e.g., "so much that...") and isn't as precise for specifying a measurement.

D) so many as : "So many" refers to countable nouns, but "thirty meters" is not countable; it's a continuous measurement.

Thus, "as much as" is the correct choice to indicate the specific distance the roots spread.

7. D) the smallest

Explanation: "the Democrats are the smallest of the four main political parties" correctly uses the superlative form.

8. A) as / as

Explanation: "London isn't as polluted a city as it was ten years ago" correctly compares the pollution levels.

9. C) so complicated that

Explanation: "The plot of the novel was so complicated that it was completely incomprehensible" indicates a cause-effect relationship.

10. A) Opinion, Size, Age, Shape, Color, Origin, Material, Purpose

Explanation: This is the correct order of adjectives in English.

11. A) Opinion-Size-Age-Shape-Color-Origin-Material

Explanation: The phrase "beautiful small old round red Italian wooden table" follows the correct order of adjectives.

12. C) They live in a big old Victorian stone house.

Explanation: This sentence correctly follows the order of adjectives.

13. C) Wooden rectangular new

Explanation: The correct order should be "new rectangular wooden table."

14. A) She adopted a cute little fluffy puppy.

Explanation: This sentence follows the correct order of adjectives.

15. C) Delicious Italian homemade pizza

Explanation: This option follows the correct order of adjectives.

16. A) He wore a nice blue cotton shirt.

Explanation: This sentence correctly follows the order of adjectives.

17. A) She found an old silver beautiful necklace.

Explanation: The correct order should be "a beautiful old silver necklace."

18. B) She baked a delicious chocolate French cake.

Explanation: This sentence follows the correct order of adjectives.

19. C) Wooden large round antique

Explanation: The correct order should be "a large round wooden antique table."

1.4 Verbs

What is a verb?

Verbs are words that describe actions, whether physical or mental. Verbs also describe a “state of being,” like the verbs be, become, or exist.

Salah ran across the field, kicked the ball, and scored a goal.

Some verbs also act as “helper verbs” to change the tense of another verb. Likewise, these helper verbs can change a positive statement to a negative one with words like “not.”

She has been jogging for a month and already feels her stamina increasing.

“I don’t feel so good.” —Spider-Man

Every sentence needs at least one verb. If there's no verb, it's an incomplete sentence or a sentence fragment. Except for imperative sentences (commands), a sentence also needs a subject, the thing doing the action.

Subjects are important for a verb because they change how it's conjugated, which we explain below. This is especially true for the most common verb: be.

1.4.1 Types of verbs

a. Dynamic (action) verbs

Most verbs describe a physical action or activity, something external that can be seen or heard. These verbs are formally known as dynamic verbs, but can also be called action or event verbs.

Examples: walk, laugh, swim, play, eat, drink, sing, dance, talk, say

There are a lot of actions that take place in our minds and feelings, which are not external. Verbs that describe mental or internal actions are still dynamic verbs, but they're not always so obvious. These include "process verbs," which describe actions of transition.

*Examples: consider, guess, change, grow, live, endure, succeed, fail*³

b. Stative (state-of-being) verbs

The opposite of dynamic verbs of action is stative verbs of being. Stative verbs describe a subject's state or feeling, including things they like and don't like.

Examples: want, need, prefer, love, hate, like, dislike, seem, understand, know, believe, involve, realize

One of the most important parts of stative verbs is that you can't use them in the continuous tenses. Stative verbs stick to the simple tenses, or occasionally use the perfect.

c. Auxiliary (helping) verbs

Auxiliary verbs, or "helping verbs," are used in English to change another verb's tense, voice, or mood. When auxiliary verbs are used, there's always a main verb that represents the main action. However, the auxiliary verb must still be conjugated correctly.

The main auxiliary verbs are be, have, and do.

I have eaten sushi many times before. (tense)

That piece of sushi was eaten by me. (voice)

Did you eat my sushi? (mood)

Exercise 2 Answers with brief explanation

1. Have you ever stayed at the Ritz?
 • Answer: B (Have)
 • Explanation: The present perfect tense is used here because it refers to an experience in someone's life up to now.
2. We had breakfast in bed.
 • Answer: D (had)
 • Explanation: "Had" is the past simple form of "have," which fits the context of a completed action in the past.
3. Did John give you those flowers?
 • Answer: A (Did)

- Explanation: "Did" is used to form questions in the past simple tense.
4. I did my homework very quickly last night.
- Answer: C (did)
 - Explanation: "Did" is the past simple form of "do," and it matches the time reference "last night."
5. She has a shower every morning before school.
- Answer: B (has)
 - Explanation: "Has" is used in the present simple tense to describe a habitual action.
6. We aren't talking to James about his exam.
- Answer: D (aren't)
 - Explanation: The present continuous tense is used to indicate an ongoing action that is not happening now.
7. Lots of trees were blown down by the wind.
- Answer: A (were)
 - Explanation: Passive voice in the past simple tense requires "were" for plural subjects.
8. Where were you yesterday?
- Answer: D (were)
 - Explanation: "Were" is the past form of "be" used with second person singular/plural or first/second/third person plural.
9. Mary never does the washing up.

Answer: D (about)

Explanation: "Worry about" is the correct collocation for expressing concern.

d. Modal auxiliary verbs

Some auxiliary verbs are added to another verb to show necessity, possibility, or capability. Like other auxiliary verbs, modal auxiliary verbs are not the main verb, but they do change its meaning slightly. Some common examples are can, may, could, should, would, must, ought, and might.

I could swim across the English Channel, but should I do it?

She must be the strongest person on the team, and might be the strongest person in the region.

e. Phrasal verbs

Phrasal verbs are phrases that act as individual verbs, often combining two or more words and changing their meaning. The verb get, for example, becomes many different phrasal verbs when combined with different prepositions.

When the bus stops, passengers get out on the sidewalk.

1.5 Adverbs

An adverb is a word that describes an adjective, a verb, or another adverb.

I entered the room quietly.

Quietly is describing how you entered (verb) the room.

A cheetah is always faster than a lion.

Always is describing how frequently a cheetah is faster (adjective) than a lion.

1.7 Conjunctions

Conjunctions make it possible to build complex sentences that express multiple ideas. “I like marinara sauce. I like alfredo sauce. I don’t like puttanesca sauce.” Each of these three sentences expresses a clear idea. There’s nothing wrong with listing your preferences like this, but it’s not the most efficient way to do it.

Consider instead: “I like marinara sauce and alfredo sauce, but I don’t like puttanesca sauce.

In this sentence, and and but are the two conjunctions that link your ideas together.

1.7.1 Types of Conjunctions

1.7.1.1. Coordinating conjunctions

Coordinating conjunctions allow you to join words, phrases, and clauses of equal grammatical rank in a sentence. The most common coordinating conjunctions are for, and, nor, but, or, yet, and so; you can remember them by using the mnemonic device FANBOYS.

I’d like pizza or a salad for lunch.

We needed a place to concentrate, so we packed up our things and went to the library.

Jesse didn’t have much money, but she got by.

Notice the use of the comma when a coordinating conjunction is joining two independent clauses.

1.7.1.2 Correlative conjunctions

Correlative conjunctions are pairs of conjunctions that work together. The most common correlative conjunctions are both/and, either/or, neither/nor, not only/but also, whether/or.

Eg. Amina is not only clever, but also the most beautiful girl in the class.

1.7.1.3 Subordinating conjunctions

Subordinating conjunctions join independent and dependent clauses. A subordinating conjunction can signal a cause-and-effect relationship, a contrast, or some other kind of relationship between the clauses. Common subordinating conjunctions are because, since, as, although, though, while, and whereas. Sometimes an adverb, such as until, after, or before can function as a conjunction.

Eg. I can stay out until the clock strikes twelve.

The independent clause could stand alone as a sentence; the dependent clause depends on the main clause to make sense. It is part of the dependent clause. Moreover, If the dependent clause comes first, use a comma before the independent clause.

Eg. Before you leave, make sure your room is clean.

I drank a glass of water because I was thirsty.

Because I was thirsty, I drank a glass of water.

After	although	as	as if	as long as
as much as	as soon as	as though	because	before by the time	even if	even though	if in order that	in case	in the event that	lest now that	once	only	only if

Exercise 3 Answers with brief explanation

1. I want _____ gummy bears _____ jelly beans for a snack.

Answer: D (either/or)

Explanation: "Either/or" is used to indicate a choice between two options.

2. _____ save me a seat _____ I will leave my coat on that chair.

Correct Answer: A. Either/or

Explanation:

The phrase "Either/or" is used to present two alternatives, where one option will be chosen if the other is not. In this sentence:

"Either save me a seat or I will leave my coat on that chair" means that if someone does not save a seat for the speaker, they will take the action of leaving their coat on the chair as an alternative.

Other options do not fit logically:

Both/and implies both actions will happen simultaneously, which doesn't make sense in this context.

Not only/but also emphasizes addition, which isn't appropriate here.

Whether/or suggests uncertainty or indifference between the two options, which doesn't match the conditional tone of the sentence.

Thus, "Either/or" is the best choice.

3. Mark earns a lot of money because he _____ works late, ____ has a second, part-time job.

Answer: B (not only/ but also)

Explanation: "Not only/but also" emphasizes additional reasons for his high income.

4. I knew it was going to be a bad day because I _____ over slept _____ missed the bus.

Answer: A (not only/ but also)

Explanation: "Not only/but also" connects two related negative events.

5. We will go to the movies _____ tonight _____ tomorrow night.

Answer: C (either/or)

Explanation: "Either/or" indicates a choice between two specific times.

6. I will be your friend _____ you stay here _____ move away.

Answer: A (whether/or)

Explanation: "Whether/or" shows that the friendship remains regardless of location.

7. _____ Mom _____ Dad insist that I practice an hour a day.

Answer: B (Both/and)

Explanation: "Both/and" emphasizes that both parents share the same insistence.

8. _____ oil was discovered in Alberta as early as 1914, the oil and gas industry really took off in the late 1960s when large deposits were discovered.

Correct Answer: B. As a result

Explanation:

The sentence describes a cause-and-effect relationship: oil was discovered in Alberta as early as 1914, and as a result , the oil and gas industry really took off in the late 1960s when larger deposits were discovered.

A. By contrast : This is used to show a difference or opposition between two things, which does not fit here because the sentence is about a progression, not a contrast.

B. As a result : This correctly indicates that the discovery of oil in 1914 led to the later development of the oil and gas industry.

C. Therefore : While this could also indicate a cause-and-effect relationship, it is more commonly used to introduce a conclusion rather than an event in history.

D. In spite of the fact that : This implies something happened despite another fact, which contradicts the logical flow of the sentence.

Thus, "As a result" is the most appropriate choice.

9. _____ museums, libraries and archives are cultural institutions, they should ensure that their collections are built up in accordance with universally recognized moral principles.

Answer: D (Considering that)

Explanation: "Considering that" introduces a reason or justification.

10. Smallpox was eventually declared eradicated in 1980, _____ a vigorous campaign of immunization by the World Health Organization.

Answer: B (thanks to)

Explanation: "Thanks to" credits the success to the immunization campaign.

11. During the war of 1812, the Royal Navy had more ships than the U.S. Navy; _____, they were able to maintain a tight blockade on American waters and transport British Army troops to American shores.

Answer: D (therefore)

Explanation: "Therefore" links cause (more ships) to effect (blockade).

12. Telecare is a telephone support service in the US which provides contact with people who are alone and isolated _____ they are aged or have disabilities.

Answer: B (because)

Explanation: "Because" explains why these individuals need support.

13. Though Cholera is spread _____ directly or through flies and waste, water is the chief medium for spread of this disease and hence it is termed as water-borne disease.

Answer: A (either)

Explanation: "Either" indicates one of two possible ways cholera spreads.

14. _____ offering the most essential services to mankind, the coastal wetlands and marine life of the Asian countries generate income for millions of people.

Answer: C (Apart from)

Explanation: "Apart from" adds another benefit of wetlands.

15. Businesses are failing _____ a lack of trained workers and people to buy products.

Answer: C (because of)

Explanation: "Because of" gives the reason for business failures.

16. The coconut palm is _____ highly valued by the Pacific Islanders as both a source of food and medicine that it is called The Tree of Life.

Correct Answer: D. so

Explanation:

The sentence requires a word that connects the degree of valuation ("highly valued") to the result ("it is called The Tree of Life"). The correct structure here is "so...that", which emphasizes the extent of something leading to a specific outcome.

A. such : "Such" is used with nouns (e.g., "such a valuable tree"), but here we need an adverb to modify "highly valued."

B. much : "Much" does not fit grammatically in this context and does not create the necessary cause-and-effect relationship.

C. too : "Too" implies excess, which doesn't make sense in this positive context.

D. so : "So...that" is the correct construction to show the extent of the coconut palm's value, leading to its nickname, "The Tree of Life."

Thus, the correct choice is "so" .

Final Sentence:

"The coconut palm is so highly valued by the Pacific Islanders as both a source of food and medicine that it is called The Tree of Life."

17. The research in biotechnology will provide _____ dramatic medical breakthroughs but also millions of dollars in new investment, and new opportunities for many people.

Correct Answer: D. not only

Explanation:

The phrase "not only...but also" is used to emphasize two related outcomes or benefits. In this case, the research in biotechnology will provide not only dramatic medical breakthroughs but also financial and opportunity-related benefits.

A. both : "Both" would require a different structure (e.g., "both dramatic medical breakthroughs and millions of dollars"), which doesn't fit here.

B. either : "Either" is used for choices between two options, which isn't appropriate in this context.

C. whether : "Whether" introduces uncertainty, which doesn't match the certainty of the statement.

D. not only : This is the correct choice because it pairs with "but also" to highlight multiple positive outcomes.

Final Sentence:

"The research in biotechnology will provide not only dramatic medical breakthroughs but also millions of dollars in new investment, and new opportunities for many people."

18. In Japan, the oyster seed is _____ being cultured in nets to market size but also released on the bottom where good returns are being obtained two to three years later.

Answer: C (not only)

Explanation: "Not only" introduces one of two related actions.

19. Several years ago, a tobacco company attempted to sell a cigarette that made no smoke; _____, people who tested that product did not like the way it tasted.

Answer: A (however)

Explanation: "However" contrasts the attempt with its failure.

20. The most common way of preserving genetic materials is to deposit seeds in gene banks; _____ that, cultivating plants in their original environment is the most natural preservation method.

Answer: B (apart from)

Explanation: "Apart from" highlights an alternative method.

21. _____ recycling of wastes material solves the problem of garbage disposal at landfills, and saves resources, it entails large hidden costs in collecting, sorting and manufacturing.

Correct Answer: C. Nevertheless

Explanation:

The sentence contrasts the positive effects of recycling (solving garbage disposal and saving resources) with its negative aspect (hidden costs). The word "nevertheless" is used to introduce this contrast.

A. Since : "Since" implies a reason or cause, which doesn't fit the contrasting tone of the sentence.

B. As a consequence : This suggests a result, but the sentence is about a contrast, not a direct consequence.

C. Nevertheless : This correctly introduces the contrast between the benefits and the drawbacks of recycling.

D. Therefore : "Therefore" indicates a logical conclusion, which isn't appropriate here because the sentence highlights a contradiction.

Final Sentence:

"Nevertheless, recycling of waste material solves the problem of garbage disposal at landfills, and saves resources, it entails large hidden costs in collecting, sorting, and manufacturing."

(Note: The sentence could be slightly rephrased for better flow, but "nevertheless" is the most suitable choice.)

22. The experts found that between forty million and eighty million people have been forced to move from their homes _____ dams.

Answer: C (because of)

Explanation: "Because of" identifies the cause of displacement.

23. Replacement cost coverage ensures that your home will be fully rebuilt ---- a total loss.

Answer: B (in case of)

Explanation: "In case of" specifies the condition under which rebuilding occurs.

24. While eating sweets, the brain instantly releases endorphins which make us feel happy and reduce pain; _____ many pediatricians give sweets to children while giving injections.

Answer: A (that's why)

Explanation: "That's why" connects the effect (happiness) to the action (giving sweets).

25. Srirangam was an ancient place of pilgrimage for the Indians and was surrounded by a strong fort but there was _____ the necessary army _____ the weapons to protect it.

Answer: B (neither/nor)

Explanation: "Neither/nor" indicates the absence of both army and weapons.

26. Employees need to continually expand their job skills _____ they can achieve their full personal potential.

Answer: A (so that)

Explanation: "So that" expresses purpose or intention.

27. A violation of the law, _____ how slight, is a crime and therefore punishable.

Answer: C (however)

Explanation: "However" emphasizes the severity regardless of minor details.

28. Food producers claim that adding fiber to foods is difficult _____ it changes the qualities of the food.

Answer: C (since)

Explanation: "Since" provides the reason for the difficulty.

29. _____ much you sail, there will always be something new to learn about.

Answer: D (however)

Explanation: "However" emphasizes the extent of learning opportunities.

30. _____ little space you have in your garden, it's always possible to grow something to eat.

Answer: B (no matter how)

Explanation: "No matter how" indicates that the statement applies regardless of space constraints.

CHAPTER-TWO: PHRASAL VERBS

Learning Outcomes: At the end of this chapter you are expected to:

-  Identify types and functions of phrasal verbs.
-  Explain the major difference between phrasal verbs and other verbs
-  Add phrasal verbs in to your daily communication activities.

Student, can you define what phrasal verbs are?

2.1 Phrasal verb defined

A phrasal verb combines a normal verb with an adverb or a preposition, referred to as the particle of the phrasal verb, to create an entirely new verbal phrase—the phrasal verb. The meaning of a phrasal verb is usually unrelated to the meanings of the words that compose it, so think of a phrasal verb as an entirely new and independent word.

When used in a sentence, phrasal verbs act the same as other verbs for conjugation and placement purposes, although they do have special grammatical rules regarding word order, which we talk about below. Phrasal verbs can be conjugated into every type of verb form, so you can use them anywhere you could use a normal verb.

Let's see the phrasal verb get over as an example. The verb get alone means to acquire, and the preposition over alone usually refers to being higher than or going above something. However, put them together and the phrasal verb get over means to recover from or overcome something, a completely new definition that's separate from the definitions of get and over.

You can use get over just like a normal verb, in any form or tense. Here are some quick examples:

Simple past tense:

I had the flu last week but got over it.

Infinitive:

He wrote a song to get over his grandmother's death.

2.2 How to conjugate phrasal verbs

When a phrasal verb is used as the main verb of a sentence, you conjugate the verb part and leave the other word or words as they are. Simply use whatever form of the verb you would use if it were alone.

Examples

I get up at noon during the summer.

However, this morning I got up at sunrise.

I have gotten up early too many times this month.

Notice how only the word get changes, while the word up remains the same. Also notice how get, an irregular verb, uses its irregular forms to fit whichever tense it needs. In this way, you can use phrasal verbs in all the verb tenses so that you're able to communicate anything you want.

2.3 Separable and Inseparable Phrasal Verbs

2.3.1 Separable phrasal verbs

With transitive phrasal verbs, you can sometimes put the direct object between the verb and the particle, as in “pick you up,” for example. There are, however, a few rules to follow with separable phrasal verbs, so pay attention to our next section, about word order.

He forgot to shut the lights off before he left.

2.3.2 Inseparable phrasal verbs

Inseparable phrasal verbs cannot be split up; the verb and the particle must stay together. All intransitive phrasal verbs are inseparable.

The wayward son carried on without his father.

Some transitive phrasal verbs are also inseparable.

2.4 Word order with phrasal verbs

Most of the time, the words in a phrasal verb stay together. For intransitive and inseparable transitive phrasal verbs, the verb and the particle must go next to each other and should never be split up. Separable phrasal verbs follow different rules, however. For starters, separable phrasal verbs are always transitive, so they always have a direct object. You can put the direct object in the middle of separable phrasal verbs, between the verb and the particle:

Eg. You never let any of your friends down.

With some separable phrasal verbs, putting the direct object between the verb and the particle is not just an option, it's required. For example, let's look at the phrasal verb get down.

Eg. The beginning of the movie up gets down everyone.

The beginning of the movie up gets everyone down.

With other separable phrasal verbs, it doesn't matter whether the direct object comes in the middle or at the end. Both options are acceptable. Unfortunately, there's no method for determining which phrasal verbs are separable and which are not; you just have to memorize them and practice until they come naturally. Both of the following examples using the separable phrasal verb pick up are correct:

Pick the box up and carry it to the kitchen.*

Pick up the box and carry it to the kitchen.*

However, pronouns do follow a special rule when it comes to separable phrasal verbs:

If the object is a pronoun, it must always be placed in the middle of a separable phrasal verb. Pronoun direct objects cannot after the phrasal verb.

Pick up it and carry it to the kitchen.

Pick it up and carry it to the kitchen.

CHAPTER - 3: ACTIVE AND PASSIVE

Learning Outcomes: At the end of this chapter you are expected to:

-  Define active and passive voices.
-  Explain the major difference between active and passive voices.
-  Use active and passive voices properly.
-  Compare and contrast active and passive voices

Student, can you define what active and passive voices are?

a. Active voice:_____

eg.

b. passive voice:_____

eg.eeg

In English, the standard format where the subject performs the action is known as the active voice. However, you can switch around your words to make the direct or indirect objects the subject of the sentence, known as the passive voice.

Stricklen threw the ball to Williams. (active)

The ball was thrown to Williams by Stricklen. (passive)

Williams was thrown the ball by Stricklen. (passive)

3.1 Forming Passive Sentences

Object + a Form of 'Be' + V3

Eg. The letters were delivered.

3.2 Uses of Passive Voice

We use passive voices in the following cases.

- When you don't know the person who performed the action.

The bank was robbed.

- When it is not important who performed the action.

Harvard University was founded in 1636.

- When the performer is not a specific person.

English is spoken in many countries around the world.

- When you prefer not to mention the name of the performer.

I was told that you didn't go to work today.

- Used with a performer: by + performer

The cake was made by my cousin.

Exercise 5 answers with brief explanation

1. A lot of old songs _____ on the radio last week. (Play)

Answer: were played

Explanation: The subject "songs" is passive because they were played by someone else. The time reference "last week" requires the past simple tense.

2. The President _____ about the coup in Central America. (Just inform)

Answer: has just been informed

Explanation: The use of "just" suggests a recent action, requiring the present perfect continuous tense in the passive voice.

3. If I _____ you I wouldn't go to the meeting. (Be)

Answer: were

Explanation: This is a hypothetical situation in the second conditional, so we use "were" regardless of the subject.

4. The bank manager told me that the house _____ for. (Not pay)

Answer: hadn't been paid

Why "had not been paid" is correct:

Active vs Passive Voice:

In English, verbs can be in the active voice or passive voice.

Active voice: The subject performs the action. Example: "The bank manager paid the house."

Passive voice: The subject receives the action. Example: "The house was paid by the bank manager."

In this case, the house is not the one paying but is receiving the action (not being paid for).

Therefore, the sentence must be in passive voice.

Tense Choice:

The sentence refers to an action that happened before the bank manager told you something. The reporting verb ("told") is in the past, so we need to show that the action of "not being paid for" occurred before this moment.

To indicate this past action before another past action, we use the past perfect tense. The past perfect tense is formed with had + past participle.

In this case, the verb "pay" is in the form "had not been paid", where:

Had is the auxiliary verb (helping verb) for the past perfect tense.

Not is the negation.

Been is the past participle of the verb "be" (indicating passive voice).

Paid is the past participle of "pay."

Structure of the Passive Voice:

The structure for passive voice in the past perfect tense is:

Subject + had + not + been + past participle (of the main verb)

In the given sentence:

"The house" is the subject.

"Had not been" is the past perfect auxiliary.

"Paid" is the past participle of the verb "pay."

Final Explanation:

The bank manager is informing you about a situation that happened before they spoke to you (the house not being paid for).

Therefore, "had not been paid" is the correct tense and voice to show that the house was not paid for prior to the point in time when the bank manager gave you the information.

5. I _____ the guitar since I was in nursery school. (Play)

Answer: have been playing

Explanation: The present perfect continuous tense is used to show an action that started in the past and continues to the present.

6. Margie is very happy because she _____ an engagement ring from her boyfriend. (Just Receive)

Answer: has just received

Explanation: The present perfect tense indicates a recently completed action with relevance to the present.

7. I _____ after the children while the garage _____. (Look , Repair)

Answer: am looking, is being repaired

Explanation: The first part uses the present continuous tense ("am looking") to describe an ongoing action, and the second part uses the passive voice in the present continuous tense ("is being repaired").

8. When Jane came to the office, she found out that her boss _____. (Already Leave)

Answer: had already left

Explanation: The past perfect tense is used to indicate an action completed before another action in the past.

9. Please don't interrupt us. We _____ an important conversation. (Have)

Answer: are having

Explanation: The present continuous tense is used to describe an action happening at the moment.

10. I reported to the police that my stamp collection _____ the week before. (Steal)

Answer: had been stolen

Explanation: The past perfect continuous tense in passive form is used because the theft occurred before the report.

11. A short time after the pedestrian _____ by the car the ambulance _____. (Hit, Arrive)

Answer: was hit, arrived

Explanation: The first part uses the passive voice in the past simple tense ("was hit"), and the second part uses the active voice in the past simple tense ("arrived").

12. When Mr Kennel entered the room, emails _____ by his assistants. (Type)

Answer: were being typed

Explanation: The past continuous tense in passive form is used to describe an ongoing action at a specific time in the past.

13. Dad _____ for over three weeks. (Not Smoke)

Answer: hasn't smoked

Explanation: The present perfect tense is used to show an action that started in the past and continues to the present.

14. He normally _____ up on his own but yesterday he _____ by his mom. (Wake, Wake)

Answer: wakes, was woken

Explanation: The first part uses the present simple tense ("wakes") for a habitual action, and the second part uses the passive voice in the past simple tense ("was woken").

15. They usually _____ visitors at the hospital. (Not Allow)

Answer: don't allow

Explanation: The present simple tense is used to describe a habitual action.

16. All the houses in our street _____ every year during the Christmas season. (Decorate)

Answer: are decorated

Explanation: The passive voice in the present simple tense is used because the houses are decorated by others.

17. India _____ independence in 1947. (Grant)

Answer: was granted

Explanation: The passive voice in the past simple tense is used because India received independence as an action done to it.

18. They _____ in southern Italy since the end of the war. (Live)

Answer: have been living

Explanation:

The sentence indicates an action that started in the past (since the end of the war) and continues up to the present. This requires the present perfect continuous tense .

The structure for the present perfect continuous tense is: have/has + been + verb-ing .

"Have been living" shows that their residence in southern Italy began after the war and is still ongoing.

Final Sentence:

"They have been living in southern Italy since the end of the war."

19. I _____ a car by the garage so that I could drive home. (Give)

Answer: was given

Explanation: The passive voice in the past simple tense is used because the speaker received the car from the garage.

20. Tom's father is an excellent athlete. He _____ some sort of sport every day. (Do)

Answer: does

Explanation: The present simple tense is used to describe a habitual action.

21. In general, mice can't _____ cats, in the same way, that cats can't with _____ dogs.

Answer: C (get along with)

Explanation: "Get along with" means to have a good relationship or interact peacefully with someone or something. Mice generally cannot get along with cats, just as cats cannot get along with dogs. The other options do not fit the context of relationships between animals.

22. Our math class is tough. Even though I do the homework every night, I can't keep _____.

Answer: C (up)

Explanation: "Keep up" means to stay at the same level or pace as others, especially in a challenging situation like a tough math class. The phrase suggests the struggle to maintain progress despite effort. Other options like "on," "over," or "by" do not convey this meaning.

23. I can't believe he pointed _____ the manager's mistakes in front of the whole company!

Answer: D (out)

Explanation: "Pointed out" means to draw attention to something, often by identifying or highlighting it. In this case, the person highlighted the manager's mistakes publicly. Other options like "down," "through," or "over" do not fit the context of calling attention to something.

24. What are you doing tonight? Do you want to hang _____?

Answer: B (out)

Explanation: "Hang out" is a common informal phrase meaning to spend time relaxing or socializing with others. It fits the casual tone of the sentence. Other options like "over," "through," or "across" do not make sense in this context.

CHAPTER FOUR: INFINITIVES AND GERUNDS

Learning Outcomes: At the end of this chapter you are expected to:

-  Define infinitives and gerunds.
-  List verbs that can be followed by infinitive, gerund or either.
-  Use the correct form of gerund and infinitive where necessary.

Student, what do you do when two main verbs appear together in a sentence in English?

Gerund and infinitive defined

In English, when two main verbs appeared together in a sentence the second verb must be either in the infinitive (TO) form or gerund (ING) form. On the other hand, infinitive and gerunds are noun forms of verbs.

Do you like to swim?

Do you enjoy learning?

4.1 Infinitive

An infinitive adds the preposition to in front of a verb's root form. Although technically two words, an infinitive act as a single word, usually a noun, but sometimes also an adjective or adverb.

To forgive is divine. (noun)

4.1.1 Examples Verbs that are commonly followed by infinitive agree	deserve	appear	determine arrange	ask	attempt	beg decide	demand	elect	endeavor hurry	incline	learn	manage mean	need	neglect	offer pay	plan	prepare	pretend

4.2 The Gerund

The gerund is the -ing form of verbs. A gerund is strictly used as a noun, and occasionally you can use them to create gerund phrases, which act as a single unit to modify the gerund.

Eg. I don't mind closing windows.

4.2.1 Example Verbs that are commonly followed by the gerund

Allow	anticipate	appreciate	avoid dread	endure	enjoy	escape evade	explain	fancy	fear
feel like	feign	finish	forgive permit	picture	postpone	practice prevent	put off	recall	recollect recommend	report	resent	resist suggest	support	tolerate	understand

4.2.2 Verbs that are Followed by Either with No meaning Change

There are certain verbs in English that can be followed by either a gerund or an infinitive without causing a change in meaning. These verbs include:

- Begin continue hate
- Intend like love
- Prefer start

When these verbs are used, both the gerund and infinitive forms are acceptable, and the choice between them depends on personal preference or style rather than a difference in meaning.

For example:

1. She began singing / to sing when she was just a child.
2. I love dancing / to dance in my free time.
3. Do you prefer reading / to read fiction novels?

In these sentences, both the gerund and the infinitive forms can be used interchangeably without altering the intended meaning of the sentence.

4.2.3 Verbs that are Followed by Either with Meaning Change

In English, some verbs can be followed by either a gerund (-ing form) or an infinitive (to + base verb), and the choice of form can lead to a change in meaning. Here are some common verbs that exhibit this pattern:

a. Forget

- Forget to Do: Indicates that someone did not do something.

Example: She often forgets to lock the door when she leaves the house.

- Forget Doing: Implies not remembering something done in the past.

Example: Mary forgets meeting Tim in Italy.

b. Regret

- Regret to Do: Expresses having to do something unpleasant.

Example: I regret to tell you the bad news.

- Regret Doing: Conveys not liking what was done in the past.

Example: Peter regrets moving to Chicago.

c. Stop

- Stop to Do: Denotes stopping one action to do another.

Example: Jason stopped to speak with his boss about the convention.

- Stop Doing: Indicates completely quitting an action, often a bad habit.

Example: I stopped smoking cigarettes.

These verbs illustrate how the choice between using a gerund or an infinitive can alter the intended meaning of the sentence, highlighting nuances in language usage.

Objectives: At the end of this unit, you're expected to

- ✚ Explain rules for subject-verb agreement
- ✚ Make sentences with accurate subject verb agreement.
- ✚ Apply subject verb agreement rules.
- ✚ Revise sentences containing agreement problems.

Subject-verb agreement, also known as “subject-verb concord,” extends to matching the subject and verb in tense, aspect, and mood (TAM), which essentially translates to number, person, and gender. English grammar does not heavily rely on gender distinctions except for pronouns; however, verbs like “be” change based on whether they refer to first, second, or third person. In English, subject-verb agreement primarily revolves around ensuring that singular subjects are paired with singular verbs and plural subjects with plural verbs. Here are some key rules to remember:

1. Singular Subjects and Verbs: A singular subject requires a singular verb, and a plural subject needs a plural verb.
For example, “She writes every day.”
2. Plural Subjects and Verbs: Similarly, plural subjects should be paired with plural verbs.
For instance, “They write every day.”
3. Compound Subjects: When the subject consists of two or more nouns or pronouns connected by “and,” use a plural verb.
Example, “The doctoral student and the committee members write every day.”
4. Phrases Between Subject and Verb: Even if there is a phrase between the subject and the verb, the verb should still agree with the subject.
Eg., “The student, as well as the committee members, is excited.”
5. Singular Nouns Connected by “or” or “nor”: When two singular nouns are connected by “or” or “nor,” use a singular verb.
Eg. “The chairperson or the CEO approves the proposal before proceeding.”
6. Collective Nouns: Collective nouns like “group,” “team,” or “committee” are considered singular and take a singular verb unless the focus is on individuals within the group.

Eg. The committee has agreed on some issues about the new project.

7. Indefinite Pronouns: Words like “each,” “either,” “neither,” etc., are singular and require singular verbs.

Eg. Each student has been in the library till midnight.

8. Noncount Nouns: Noncount nouns take singular verbs.

Water is the most important thing for life.

9. Countable Nouns with Only Plural Form: Some countable nouns only have a plural form and take plural verbs.

The scissors are sharp” or “hand me those scissors.

Some goods were expired before they reached the customers.

10. “There is” vs. “There are”: In sentences starting with these phrases, the verb agrees with what follows it.

Eg. There is a book on the shelf.

There are books on the shelf.

11. When we use correlative conjunctions like either...or, neither...nor, not only...but also etc, then the verb must agree with its nearest subject.

Eg. Either the student or the teachers are in the room.

Not only the teachers but also the director was complaining about salary.

CHAPTER-6: TENSES

Learning outcomes: At the end of this unit, you're expected to

-  Discuss what tenses are and their types
-  Explain how regular and irregular verbs can be used in different tense
-  Identify between different verb forms (action verbs, linking verbs, helping verbs).
-  Communicate a message using appropriate verb tenses

6.1 Tense Defined

A tense is a form of the verb that allows you to express time. The tense of the verb tells us when an event or something existed or when a person did something. Past, present, and future are the three main types of tenses.

6.2. Present tenses

6.2.1. The simple present tense

It's made with the root form, unless the subject is third-person singular (he, she and it), in which case you use the third-person singular present form.

I/We/You/They+ V1 (base form) OR He/She/It + V1 (in simple present form)

Eg. a. Kim feels lousy today.

b. I study every night before bed.

Uses of Simple Present

The simple present tense in English has the following key uses:

i. Happening Right Now: The simple present tense is used to describe actions that are happening at the moment of speaking.

For example:

“Pauline loves pie.”

ii. Regular Actions: It is also used to talk about actions that happen regularly or habitually. For instance:

a. “Ms. Jackson travels during the summer.”

b. “Hamsters run all night.”

iii. General Truths: The simple present is employed to express general truths or facts that are always true:

a. “People need food.”

b. “Two and two make four.”

iv. Future Plans: When discussing fixed plans or timetables, the simple present can be used to talk about the future:

a. “School begins at nine tomorrow.”

b. “What time does the film start?”

v. Conditions: The present simple is used in the first and zero conditionals to express real or possible situations:

a. “If it rains, we won’t come.”

b. “If you heat water to 100 degrees, it boils.”

6.2.2 The present continuous tense

Form the present continuous by adding the conjugated simple present form of be before the present participle of your main verb (the -ing form).

am / is / are + [PRESENT PARTICIPLE]

Examples

Tony is sleeping at the moment.

Later, we’re seeing the new zombie movie. Everyone is talking about it!

Uses of Present Continuous Tense

The present continuous tense, also known as the present progressive tense, is mainly used in the following cases.

i. Events at the Time of Speaking: The present continuous is used to talk about events that are in progress at the moment of speaking. For example:

a. “I’m cooking now so it’ll be ready in about half an hour.”

b. “She’s pressing the button but nothing is happening.”

ii. Temporary States: Temporary states that are true around the moment of speaking are described using the present continuous. For instance:

a. “Her mother’s living with her at the moment.”

b. “Who’s looking after the children while you’re here?”

iii. Repeated Temporary Events: Actions that are repeated or regular but believed to be temporary are expressed using the present continuous. For example:

- a. “I’m not drinking much coffee these days. I’m trying to cut down.”
- b. “She’s working a lot in London at the moment.”

iv. Change: The present continuous is used to talk about gradual changes. For instance:

- a. “They’re building a new stand at the football ground.”
- b. “Maria, 37, is getting better and doctors are optimistic she will make a full recovery.”

v. Regular Unplanned Events: Events that are regular but not planned can be described using the present continuous with adverbs of indefinite frequency like always, constantly, continually, and forever. For example:

- a. “My wife, she’s always throwing things out.”
- b. “I’m constantly spilling things.”

vi. Plans and Arrangements: Future plans and arrangements that have already been made are referred to using the present continuous. For instance:

- a. “We’re moving to Cambridge in July.”
- b. “Sarah isn’t taking Rory to football training later.”

6.2.3 The present perfect tense

To form the present perfect tense, add the present conjugation of have before the verb’s past participle.

has/have + [PAST PARTICIPLE]

Examples

I’ve worked here since the beginning.

Macbeth has murdered the king!

Uses of Present Perfect Tense

The present perfect tense is used in various contexts in English to indicate actions that started in the past and have relevance to the present. Here are some common uses of the present perfect tense:

- i. Ongoing Actions: The present perfect tense is used to describe actions that started in the past and are still ongoing or have just been completed. For example: “I have lived in this city for five years.”

- ii. Experiences: It is used to talk about experiences in a person's life without specifying when they occurred. For instance: "She has visited Europe several times."
- iii. Changes Over Time: The present perfect tense can indicate changes or developments that have taken place over a period leading up to the present. For example: "The company has grown significantly since last year."
- iv. Unfinished Actions: It is used for actions that started in the past but are not yet completed. For instance: "He has studied all night for the exam."
- v. Multiple Actions: The present perfect tense can be used to talk about multiple actions that have occurred at different times but are relevant to the present moment. For example: "I have read three books this month."
- vi. Recent Events: It is also used to discuss recent events or actions that have an impact on the current situation. For instance: "The team has just won the championship."
- vii. Actions with Indefinite Time: When the time of an action is not specified or is considered indefinite, the present perfect tense is used. For example: "They have already eaten dinner."
- viii. Repetitive Actions: It can be used to talk about actions that a person has repeated over a period until now. For instance: "She has always loved playing the piano."
- ix. Achievements: The present perfect tense is often used to talk about achievements or accomplishments in one's life. For example: "He has graduated from university."
- x. Actions with Present Relevance: It is used for actions that have a connection or relevance to the present moment, emphasizing their importance now.

Example: "I have lost my keys; I can't find them anywhere."

6.2.4 The present perfect continuous tense

The present perfect and the present perfect continuous can often be used interchangeably, but the big difference is emphasis. The present perfect continuous emphasizes that the event is ongoing, whereas the present perfect alone emphasizes completion or achievement.

has/have + been + [PRESENT PARTICIPLE]

Examples

The town has been mining gold since the 1800s.

I've been locked in my closet for hours!

Uses of Present Perfect Continuous Tense

The present perfect continuous tense is used in various contexts to convey specific meanings related to actions that started in the past and are still ongoing or have recently stopped but have a connection to the present moment. Here are some common uses of the present perfect continuous tense:

i. Duration from the Past Until Now: One of the primary uses of the present perfect continuous tense is to indicate that an action started in the past and has continued up to the present moment. This emphasizes the duration or length of time the action has been taking place.

Example: "They have been talking for the last hour."

ii. Recent Past Activities: The present perfect continuous tense can be used to talk about activities that were completed in the recent past. Even though the activity is finished, there is a visible result or impact in the present.

Example: "I've just been cleaning the car." (The car is wet and clean.)

iii. One Continuing Event: This tense is used to describe a single activity that began at a specific point in the past and is still ongoing at the present time.

Example: "He's been living in the village since 1995."

iv. Repeated Continuing Events: Present perfect continuous can also be used for repeated activities that started at a particular time in the past and are still happening up to now.

Example: "I've been going to Spain on holiday every year since 1987."

v. Asking About Duration: The present perfect continuous tense is often used to ask and answer questions about how long an activity has been taking place.

Example: "How long have you been waiting for me?"

vi. Actions with Visible Results: It is used for actions that have recently stopped but have a visible result that can be observed, heard, or felt in the present.

Example: "It's been raining, so the pavement is wet."

6.3 Past Tenses

6.3.1 The simple past tense

The simple past tense is formed by S + V2 (with or without object)

Examples

When I was young, I played in the backyard every day.

They lost again, and no one was surprised.

Uses of Simple Past Tense

It is commonly used in various contexts to convey past events, states, or habits. Here are some major uses of the simple past tense:

i. Describing Past Actions: The primary function of the simple past tense is to narrate actions that took place at a specific point in the past. For example:

“She finished her homework before dinner.”

“They visited Paris last summer.”

ii. Talking about Past Habits: The simple past tense can also be used to discuss habitual actions or routines that were common in the past but may not continue into the present. For instance:

“He played basketball every Saturday morning.”

“She read a book before bed each night.”

iii. Narrating Past Events: When recounting stories or events that happened in the past, the simple past tense is often employed to provide a chronological sequence of actions. For example:

“The sun set as they reached the summit.”

“He realized his mistake after it was too late.”

iv. Indicating Past States or Conditions: The simple past tense can also express states, feelings, or conditions that existed in the past. This usage helps provide context or background information about a situation:

“She was happy with her decision.”

“The weather was perfect for a picnic.”

v. Reporting Speech or Thoughts: In indirect speech or reported thoughts, the simple past tense is used to convey what someone said or thought in the past:

She said she loved the movie

6.3.2 The past continuous tense

Form the past continuous by adding the conjugated simple past form of be before the present participle. S + was/were + v-ing

Examples

They were eating dinner when the phone rang.

It was raining all day, but we still had fun indoors.

Uses of past continuous tense

The past continuous tense, also known as the past progressive tense, is used to describe ongoing actions that were happening in the past at a specific point in time or over a period. It also used to:

i. Describe Interrupted Actions: an action that was in progress when another action interrupted it. For example:

“I was studying when my friend called.”

ii. Setting the Scene: The past continuous tense can be used to set the scene or provide background information in a narrative.

For instance: “It was raining heavily while we were driving home.”

iii. Expressing Politeness: It can be used to express politeness or soften statements when making requests or asking for information.

Eg.: “I was wondering if you could help me with this.”

iv. Talking about Simultaneous Actions: This tense is used to talk about two or more actions that were happening simultaneously in the past.

Eg. “While she was cooking dinner, he was watching TV.”

v. Expressing Duration: The past continuous tense can be used to indicate the duration of an action that was ongoing in the past. For example: “They were playing tennis for two hours.”

vi. Expressing Annoyance or Complaints: It can be used to express annoyance or complaints about repeated actions in the past. For instance: “He was always interrupting me during meetings.”

vii. Narrating Past Events: The past continuous tense is commonly used in storytelling to narrate events and actions that were happening at a specific time in the past. For example: “The sun was setting as they were walking along the beach.”

viii. Expressing Future in the Past: In reported speech, the past continuous tense can be used to express future actions from a past perspective. For example: She said she was meeting her friend later.

xi. Contrasting Actions: It can be used to contrast two actions happening at the same time in the past. For instance: “While he was sleeping, she was working on her project.”

x. Expressing Regret or Unhappiness: Is used to express regret or unhappiness about a situation that was ongoing in the past.

Example: “I was hoping you would come to the party.”

6.3.3 The past perfect tense

When a sentence has two past events, use the past perfect tense, also known as the pluperfect, to show which one happened first. It's typically used in compound or complex sentences with two clauses to show the order in which they happened.

For the past perfect tense by adding had before the past participle.

had + [PAST PARTICIPLE]

Examples

I had forgotten about our date until she reminded me.

When our plane finally landed, they had already left the airport.

Uses of past perfect tense

The past perfect tense is used to indicate an action that occurred before another action in the past. It is formed by using “had” followed by the past participle of the verb. Here are some key uses of the past perfect tense:

i. Describing Past Events in Sequence: One common use of the past perfect tense is to describe events that happened in a specific order in the past.

For example: “I had already finished my homework before my friends arrived.”

ii. Narrating Past Actions: When telling a story or recounting past events, the past perfect tense helps establish a clear timeline of actions.

For instance: “She realized she had forgotten her keys after she had left the house.”

iii. Expressing Conditions and Results: The past perfect tense is also used to express hypothetical situations or conditions in the past and their potential outcomes.

Example: “If I had known about the meeting, I would have attended.”

iv. Reporting Past Speech: When reporting what someone said in the past, especially in indirect speech, the past perfect tense can be used to indicate that the reported speech happened before the current moment.

Example: She told me that she had already seen the movie.

v. Contrasting Past Events: The past perfect tense can be used to contrast two actions or events that occurred at different times in the past. For example: “He had never traveled abroad before he took that trip.”

vi. Emphasizing Duration of an Action: The past perfect can also be used to emphasize the duration of an action that happened before another event in the past. For instance: “By the time we arrived, they had been waiting for hours.”

vii. Setting Up Flashbacks: In storytelling or writing, the past perfect tense is often used to set up flashbacks or background information that precedes the main events.

For example: “Before she met him, she had lived in Paris for several years.”

viii. Discussing Unfulfilled Conditions: The past perfect tense is used to talk about unrealized or unfulfilled conditions in the past.

Example: “If they had studied harder, they would have passed the exam.”

6.3.4 The past perfect continuous tense

Like the past perfect, the past perfect continuous tense is used in complex and compound sentences to show which event happened first. While the past perfect tense describes an individual action, the past perfect continuous shows an ongoing action that is already finished.

had been + [PRESENT PARTICIPLE]

Examples

Until the moment our picnic began, the sun had been shining all day.

She had been waiting for a sign before she finally asked him out.

Uses of Past Perfect Continuous Tense

The past perfect continuous tense is used in English to indicate actions or events that started in the past and continued up until another point in the past. Here are some key uses of the past perfect continuous tense:

i. Duration Before Something in the Past: One common use of the past perfect continuous is to show the duration of an action that started in the past and continued up to a specific time in the past. This emphasizes the ongoing nature of the action.

For example:

- They had been talking for over an hour before Tony arrived.
- She had been working at that company for three years when it went out of business.

ii. Cause of Something in the Past: Another use of the past perfect continuous is to indicate the cause of a particular event or situation in the past. By using this tense, you can show that one action was ongoing and led to another action. For instance:

- Jason was tired because he had been jogging.
- Sam gained weight because he had been overeating.

iii. Continuing Events in the Past: The past perfect continuous is also used to talk about events or actions that started before a specific time in the past and were still ongoing up to that time.

Examples

- a. It was so difficult to get up last Monday for school. I had been working on my essays the night before and I was very tired.
- b. Why did you decide to go traveling for a year? Well, I'd been reading an amazing book about a woman who rode a horse around South America.

CHAPTER-7: ARTICLES

Objectives: At the end of this chapter, you will be able to:

-  Define what articles are and their roles in English language.
-  Understand the definite and the indefinite articles.
-  Use articles correctly in written and oral languages.
-  Compare and contrast definite and indefinite articles.

What are articles?

Articles are words that identify a noun as being specific or unspecific. Consider the following examples:

After the long day, the cup of tea tasted particularly good.

By using the article the, we've shown that it was one specific day that was long and one specific cup of tea that tasted good.

After a long day, a cup of tea tastes particularly good.

By using the article a, we've created a general statement, implying that any cup of tea would taste good after any long day.

7.1 The definite article “the”

- ✓ limits the meaning of a noun to one particular thing.

For example, your friend might ask, “Are you going to the party this weekend?” The definite article tells you that your friend is referring to a specific party that both of you already know about.

- ✓ can be used with singular, plural, or uncountable nouns. Below are some examples of the definite article, the, used in context:

Please give me the hammer.

Please give me the red hammer; the blue one is too small.

Please give me the nails.

Please give me the large nail; it's the only one strong enough to hold this painting

7.2 The indefinite article

The indefinite article takes two forms. It's the word a when it precedes a word that begins with a consonant sound. It's the word an when it precedes a word that begins with a vowel sound.

- ✓ The indefinite article indicates that a noun refers to a general idea or category of a thing rather than a specific thing.

For example, you might ask your friend, "Should I bring a gift to the party?" Your friend will understand that you are not asking about a specific type of gift or a specific item.

- ✓ The indefinite article appears only with singular nouns. Consider the following examples of indefinite articles used in context:

- Please hand me a book; any book will do.
Please hand me an autobiography; any autobiography will do.

7.3 Omission of articles

Occasionally, articles are omitted altogether before certain nouns. In these cases, the article is implied but not actually present. This implied article is sometimes called a "zero article." Often, the article is omitted:

- before a noun that refers to an abstract idea.

Incorrect: Let's go out for a dinner tonight.

Correct: Creativity is a valuable quality in children.*

- Words describing nationalities are not preceded by an article.

Incorrect: I studied the French in high school for four years.

Correct: I studied French in high school for four years.

- Sports and academic subjects do not require articles.

Incorrect: I like to play the baseball.

Correct: I like to play baseball.

Incorrect: My sister was always good at the math.

Correct: My sister was always good at math.

CHAPTER-9: MODALS

Objectives: At the end of this unit, you will be able to:

- ✚ Identify the roles of different types of modal verbs Understand the function of nouns in a sentence (subject, object, possessive).
- ✚ Understand how modal verbs are different from other main verbs.
- ✚ Use appropriate modal verbs to maintain coherence in written and verbal communication.
- ✚ Learn common modal verbs.
- ✚ Answer questions containing modal verbs.

Activity

Student, can you define what modal verbs are and explain their functions in a sentence?

9.1 Modal verbs Defined

Modal verbs show possibility, intent, ability, or necessity. Common examples of modal verbs include can, should, and must. Because they're a type of auxiliary verb (helper verb), they're used alongside the infinitive form of the main verb of a sentence. Modal verbs are used to express certain hypothetical conditions, such as advisability, capability, or requests (there's a full list in the next section). They're used alongside a main verb to inflect its meaning.

Consider the difference between these two examples:

I can swim every Tuesday.

The first example is a simple factual statement. The speaker participates in a swimming activity every week on Tuesdays. The second example uses the modal verb can. Notice how the meaning changes slightly. The speaker does not necessarily swim every Tuesday; they're saying that they are capable of swimming every Tuesday or that the possibility exists for them to swim every Tuesday. It's hypothetical.

Modal verbs are quite common in English; you've seen them in action hundreds of times even if you didn't know what they were called. The most frequently used ones are:

Can	may	might
Could	should	would
Will	must	mustn't
Should	ought to	have to
Don't have to	dare

9.2 When to use modal verbs

What special conditions do modal verbs indicate? Here's a list, along with examples:

9.2.1 Likelihood

Some things seem likely to be true but can't be stated as definite facts. In these cases, you can use the modal verbs should and must to show probability without certainty.

Her parents must be so proud.

9.2.2 Possibility

In a situation when something is possible but not certain, use the modal verb could, may, or might.

Judging by the clouds, it might rain today.

She may become the youngest pro soccer player ever.

9.2.3 Ability

The modal verb can expresses whether the subject of a sentence is able to do something. Likewise, the negative form, cannot or can't, shows that the subject is unable to do something.

She can speak three languages but none of them well.

9.2.4 Permission

If you want to ask permission to do something, start your question with can, may, or could. Traditionally, may is considered more formal and polite usage for permission; if you ask “Can I go to the bathroom?” it could be misinterpreted as “Do I have the ability to go to the bathroom?” However, in modern informal usage, may and can are both perfectly acceptable options for describing possibility or permission.

Students, you may leave early today.

Could I play too?*

Similarly, if you want to ask someone else to do something, start your question with will, would, can, or could.

Would you get that box off the top shelf?*

Will you turn that music down?*

9.2.5 Suggestion/advice

What if you want to recommend a course of action but not command it? If you’re giving suggestions or advice without ordering someone around, you can use the modal verb should.

You should try the lasagna.

That guy should wear less cologne.

9.2.6 Command

On the other hand, if you want to command someone, use the modal verbs must, have, or need. With the latter two, the main verb does not drop the word to from its infinitive form.

You must wash your hands before cooking.

You need to be here before 8:00.

9.2.7 Obligation or necessity

Modal verbs can express a necessary action, such as an obligation, duty, or requirement. Likewise, the negative forms express that an action is not necessary. Use the same modal verbs as with commands: must, have, and need.

We have to wait for our boss to arrive before we open.

You don’t need to come if you don’t want to.

9.2.8 Habit

To show an ongoing or habitual action—something the subject does regularly—you can use the modal verb would for the past tense and will for the present and future. The phrase used to is also acceptable when you're talking about a habit in the past.

When I lived alone, I would fall asleep with music.

I will arrive early to every meeting and leave late.

9.3 Rules to use modal verbs

Rule 1: Modal verbs come directly before the main verb except for in questions.

Eg. She might help you.

I will study my lessons.

Rule 2: With modal verbs, always use the infinitive form of the main verb. With most but not all modal verbs, to is dropped from the infinitive.

Eg. You can do that. (correct)

You can to do that. (Incorrect)

Exercise 14 Answers with brief explanations

1. A) You must finish your assignment before leaving.
 - Explanation: "Must" expresses a strong obligation, meaning it is necessary to finish the assignment before leaving.
2. B) She might have forgotten about the meeting.
 - Explanation: "Might have" is used to express a past possibility, indicating something that could have happened in the past.
3. A) You must not smoke in this building.

- Explanation: "Must not" expresses prohibition, meaning it's forbidden to smoke in this building.
4. B) He must be at home because his car is outside.
- Explanation: "Must" is used for a logical deduction about the present, implying that it's very likely or certain that he is at home because his car is outside.
5. D) You should apologize for your mistake.
- Explanation: "Should" expresses a weak obligation, suggesting that apologizing is a good or advisable action, but not an absolute requirement.
6. B) You may leave early today.
- Explanation: "May" is a formal way of expressing permission, indicating that it's allowed to leave early.
7. A) You should have called me last night.
- Explanation: "Should have" is used to express a past obligation that was not fulfilled, indicating that it would have been the right thing to do.
8. A) You don't have to bring your own lunch; food will be provided.
- Explanation: "Don't have to" expresses lack of necessity, meaning it's not required to bring lunch because food will be provided.
9. C) Could you please help me with this task?
- Explanation: "Could you please" is a polite way to make a request, showing respect and politeness in asking for help.
10. A) You had better see a doctor about that cough.
- Explanation: "Had better" expresses strong advice, suggesting that seeing a doctor is the best course of action.
11. A) She must have left already.
- Explanation: "Must have" is used to express a past certainty, indicating that it is highly likely that she has already left.
12. B) He might win the competition.
- Explanation: "Might" expresses a possibility, but in this context, it implies that the possibility of winning is not very strong, thus making it an unlikely possibility.
13. C) If I were you, I would take the job.

- Explanation: "If I were you" is a conditional sentence expressing a hypothetical situation (something that is not true or may not happen), followed by "would."
14. D) When I was younger, I could run 10 kilometers without stopping.
- Explanation: "Could" expresses ability in the past, indicating that the speaker was able to run 10 kilometers when they were younger.
15. C) Shall I carry that for you?
- Explanation: "Shall I" is used for polite offers or suggestions, indicating the speaker is offering to carry something for the other person.
16. C) The contract shall be signed by all parties.
- Explanation: "Shall" is used in formal or legal contexts to express future certainty or requirement, implying that all parties are required to sign the contract.
17. A) You ought to have studied harder for the exam.
- Explanation: "Ought to have" expresses a past action that was expected or advisable but was not done, indicating regret or missed obligation.
18. B) He must be the one who took the documents.
- Explanation: "Must" is used to express a strong possibility or deduction based on evidence or logic, suggesting it is very likely that he took the documents.
19. C) must
- Explanation: "Must" is used to make a logical deduction based on evidence, implying that because you hear voices, it is certain that there are people in the room.
20. A) don't have to
- Explanation: "Don't have to" means there is no obligation or necessity to come to school, as tomorrow is a holiday.

CHAPTER-10: SYNTAX

Objectives: At the end of this unit, you will be able to:

- + Define what syntax is
- + Construct different types of sentences based on structure.
- + Understand how verbs agree with their antecedents.
- + Use pronouns accurately to maintain coherence in writing.
- + Compare and contrast simple, complex, compound and compound complex sentences.
- + Identify different types of sentences errors and revise them.

Activity

Dear learner, can you explain what a syntax is ?

Syntax in linguistics refers to the arrangement of words and phrases. Syntax covers topics like word order and grammar rules, such as subject-verb agreement or the correct placement of direct and indirect objects.

Syntax is essential to understanding constituency, the term for multiple words acting as a single unit. In long and complex sentences, constituency is necessary to determine the hierarchy within the sentence, particularly with sentence diagramming.

10.2 How important is syntax in English?

Changing the placement of a word often changes the meaning of the sentence. Sometimes the change is minor, useful for writers who like nuance and subtext, but sometimes the change is more significant, giving the entire sentence a whole new interpretation.

Let's see how moving the word only changes the meaning of the entire sentence. Keep in mind that only can be an adjective or an adverb; adjectives modify the nouns that come after them, and adverbs modify the verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs that come after them.

a. Only Batman fights crime.

Meaning: Batman is the only person who fights crime. No one except Batman fights crime, not even Superman.

b. Batman only fights crime.

Meaning: Fighting crime is the only thing Batman does. He doesn't work, he doesn't shower—fighting crime is all he does.

c. Batman fights only crime.

Meaning: Batman doesn't fight anything except crime. He doesn't fight Alfred or Robin; he doesn't fight the dry cleaner if they accidentally stain Syntax in English is the arrangement of words and phrases in a specific order. If you change the position of even one word, it's possible to change the meaning of the entire sentence.

All languages have specific rules about which words go where, and skilled writers can manipulate these rules to make sentences sound more poignant or poetic.

10.3 The basic rules of syntax in English

The five basic rules of syntax in English,

i. All sentences require a subject and a verb.

However, imperative sentences (commands) do not need to include their subject because it's assumed to be the person the sentence is directed at.

ii. A single sentence should include one main idea.

If a sentence includes two or more ideas, it's best to break it up into multiple sentences.

iii. The subject comes first, and the verb comes second.

If the sentence has objects, they come third, after the verb.

iv. Subordinate clauses (dependent clauses) also require a subject and verb.

v. Adjectives and adverbs go in front of the words they describe.

If there are multiple adjectives describing the same noun, use the proper adjective order, known as the "Royal Order."

10.4 Types of Sentences based on Structure

There are only four types of sentence structures, which represent different combinations of independent and subordinate clauses.

10.4.1 Simple sentence

A simple sentence is sentence that contains a single independent clause, which is the minimum requirements for a sentence.

We go to the beach in summer.

10.4.2 Complex sentence

An independent clause combined with one or more subordinate clauses is called complex sentence.

Eg. We go to the beach in summer when school is finished.

In the above sentence, the underlined part is main clause while the remaining is dependant.

10.4.3 Compound sentence

Two main clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction or a semicolon is called compound sentence.

We go to the beach in summer, but our cat stays home.

10.4.4 Compound-complex

When two independent clauses combined with one or more subordinate clauses, then it's called compound complex sentence.

Consider the following Examples

a. Although she was tired, Sarah decided to go to the gym, but she ended up taking a nap instead.

Independent Clauses: "Sarah decided to go to the gym" and "she ended up taking a nap."

Dependent Clause: "Although she was tired."

b. When the bell rang, the students rushed out of the classroom, and the teacher reminded them about their homework.

Independent Clauses: "The students rushed out of the classroom" and "the teacher reminded them about their homework."

Dependent Clause: "When the bell rang."

c. Since it was raining heavily, they canceled the picnic, but they still had a great time indoors playing board games.

Independent Clauses: "They canceled the picnic" and "they still had a great time indoors" playing board games.”

Dependent Clause: “Since it was raining heavily.”

d. Even though he missed his flight, he managed to catch a later one, and he arrived at his destination just in time for the meeting.

Independent Clauses: “He managed to catch a later one” and “he arrived at his destination just in time for the meeting.”

Dependent Clause: “Even though he missed his flight.”

e. While she studied for her exams, her friends went out partying, but she knew her hard work would pay off in the end.

Independent Clauses: “Her friends went out partying” and “she knew her hard work would pay off in the end.”

Dependent Clause: “While she studied for her exams.”

f. As soon as he finished his presentation, he received a round of applause, but he felt relieved only after answering all questions from the audience.

Independent Clauses: “He received a round of applause” and “he felt relieved only after answering all questions from the audience.”

Dependent Clause: “As soon as he finished his presentation.”

10.5 Sentence fragment

10.5.1 What is a sentence fragment?

A sentence fragment is an incomplete sentence used in place of a complete sentence. Sentence fragments are common in casual speech conversations or informal writing like text conversations, but they’re a big no-no in formal writing like school papers or business reports.

Every complete sentence needs both a subject and a verb, so make sure your sentences have both. Other common mistakes include using a subordinate clause without an independent clause and using a transitive verb without a direct object.

Sentence fragments are common in informal conversations or writing, but when it comes to formal communication, it’s best to write in whole, complete sentences. Examples Fragment: Was running down the lane and into the forest.

Revised: The moose was running down the lane and into the forest.

Fragment: Discovered the cure for the disease.

Revised: The researcher discovered the cure for the disease.

10.5.2 How to fix a sentence fragment

i. Add what's missing

The easiest way to fix a sentence fragment is to add what's missing, whether a subject, predicate, direct object, independent clause, or any combination of those

In case you didn't receive my first email.

I'm rewriting you in case you didn't receive my first email.

Everyone please bring to the party.

Everyone please bring a dish to the party.

ii. Recast the sentence

This could mean scrapping the entire fragment and starting over from scratch, or it could involve something minor such as adding a punctuation mark.

I love visiting my friend. Because he has the cutest puppy.

I love visiting my friend because he has the cutest puppy.

I love visiting my friend. He has the cutest puppy.

10.6 Run-On Sentences

10.6.1 What are run-on sentences?

To understand run-on sentences, you first have to understand independent and dependent clauses. A clause is a basic unit of language that includes a subject and a predicate (which requires at least one verb). A single clause alone, with proper punctuation, is a complete sentence.

I fell asleep.

The TV woke me up.

If you want to connect two or more clauses together in English, you need to use the right grammar. Usually, you can connect clauses correctly by adding a comma with a conjunction or adding a semicolon to the sentence.

I fell asleep, but the TV woke me up.

I fell asleep; the TV woke me up.

If you don't connect the clauses with a semicolon or comma with a conjunction, the sentence is incorrect. These mistakes are called run-on sentences.

I fell asleep the TV woke me up.

Likewise, if you use too many conjunctions or use them incorrectly (for example, without the comma), that's also a run-on sentence.

I fell asleep but the TV woke me up and now I want to sleep again but I can't.

10.6.2 Types of run-on sentences

A. Fused Sentence

A fused sentence joins two or more clauses without any punctuation.

We met for a date there was no chemistry we won't meet again.

B. Comma Splice

Comma splices are when two or more clauses are separated with only a comma and are missing a conjunction.

We met for a date, there was no chemistry, we won't meet again.

C. polysyndeton

A polysyndeton is a sentence that uses too many conjunctions or more conjunctions than necessary.

We met for a date and there was no chemistry and we won't meet again.

10.6.3 Ways to Fix a Run-On Sentence

1. Divide the clauses into two sentences

Often in writing, the best way to fix a run-on sentence is to split it into two or more separate sentences. Be sure to capitalize the first letter of each sentence and use a period, question mark, or exclamation point between them.

Our training was successful we won our first game!

Our training was successful! We won our first game!

2. Insert a semicolon between the two clauses

Another way to write better sentences is by using a semicolon to connect two clauses in the same sentence. This works great for comma splices because you can simply replace the comma with a semicolon.

It hasn't rained in weeks, my flowers are turning brown.

It hasn't rained in weeks; my flowers are turning brown.

3. Use a comma and a conjunction

You can use either a coordinating conjunction (for, and, nor, but, or, yet, and so) or a subordinating conjunction (because, if, while, etc.). If you use a coordinating conjunction, place a comma before the conjunction. If you're using a subordinating conjunction, use a comma only if the subordinate clause comes first.

This is a special trip we should get matching tattoos.

1. Answer: B

Explanation: "Because I was tired" is a dependent clause and cannot stand alone as a complete sentence. It needs an independent clause to form a complete sentence.

2. Answer: B

Explanation: "She likes coffee he prefers tea" is a run-on sentence because two independent clauses are joined without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

3. Answer: A

Explanation: "It was raining, we stayed inside" contains a comma splice because two independent clauses are incorrectly joined with just a comma.

4. Answer: D

Explanation: This sentence is grammatically correct. The other options contain errors: A has a comma splice, B uses a semicolon correctly but could be improved for clarity, and C has a misplaced comma.

5. Answer: B

Explanation: "Running through the fields" is a fragment because it lacks a subject and verb to form a complete thought.

6. Answer: B

Explanation: "He loves hiking in the mountains he goes every summer" is a run-on sentence because two independent clauses are joined without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

7. Answer: B

Explanation: "The weather is nice today, let's go for a picnic" contains a comma splice because two independent clauses are incorrectly joined with just a comma.

8. Answer: C

Explanation: "Everyone should bring their own lunch to the picnic" is correct. A uses "are" instead of "is," B uses "their" incorrectly with "each," and D incorrectly uses "is" with "either/or."

9. Answer: B

Explanation: "Because I forgot my keys at home" is a fragment because it is a dependent clause and cannot stand alone.

10. Answer: B

Explanation: "The concert starts at 7 PM we should leave by 6 PM to get good seats" is a run-on sentence because two independent clauses are joined without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

11. Answer: D

Explanation: "I have always loved classical music, especially Beethoven's symphonies" contains a comma splice because two independent clauses are incorrectly joined with just a comma.

12. Answer: C

Explanation: "Everyone needs to submit their report by Monday" is correct. A uses "were" instead of "was," B uses "have" incorrectly with "each," and D incorrectly uses "is" with "either/or."

13. Answer: A

Explanation: "If you need any help with your homework," is a fragment because it is a dependent clause and cannot stand alone.

14. Answer: A

Explanation: "The team played well they won all their matches" is a run-on sentence because two independent clauses are joined without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

15. Answer: A

Explanation: "There are many reasons why people choose not to vote" is grammatically correct. B incorrectly uses "have" with "neither," C uses "their" incorrectly with "everyone," and D incorrectly uses "is" with "both."

16. Answer: D

Explanation: "She studied hard for her exams she still didn't pass" contains a comma splice because two independent clauses are incorrectly joined with just a comma.

17. Answer: B

Explanation: "Neither of them were present during class" is incorrect because "neither" is singular and requires "was" instead of "were."

18. Answer: D

Explanation: "Neither option seems appealing right now" is grammatically correct. A has a comma splice, B is a fragment, and C is a run-on sentence.

19. Answer: A

Explanation: "The sun sets in the west it rises in the east" is a run-on sentence because two independent clauses are joined without proper punctuation or conjunctions.

20. Answer: D

Explanation: "Everyone needs their own space sometimes" is grammatically correct. A uses "their" incorrectly with "everyone," B uses "their" incorrectly with "each," and C incorrectly uses "seem" with "neither."

101. Which type of writing is the passage most like?

Answer: B. Narrative

Explanation:

The sentences describe an event where Samrawit dresses unusually and gets a new haircut, making her look different. This suggests a story or narrative about her actions and appearance changes, rather than purely descriptive, expository, or argumentative writing.

102. Which one is taken from a formal letter of application?

Answer: D. I am writing in response to the position of IT assistant advertised in the monitor.

Explanation:

Formal letters of application typically begin by referencing the job being applied for, often mentioning where the advertisement was seen. Option D fits this structure perfectly. The other options are either too conversational (A), polite but not specific enough (B), or irrelevant (C).

103. Which contains errors in capitalization, mechanics, and punctuation?

Answer: C. Peter, my elder brother received medals for his contributions Astronomy, chemistry and Mathematics.

Explanation:

In option C, "Astronomy," "chemistry," and "Mathematics" should all be capitalized because they refer to specific subjects.

Additionally, there should be commas after "brother" and before listing the subjects for clarity.

Correct version:

Peter, my elder brother, received medals for his contributions to Astronomy, Chemistry, and Mathematics.

104. Which one is taken from an informal letter?

Answer: A. Wish me good luck for my math exam.

Explanation:

Informal letters often include casual phrases such as wishing someone luck or expressing personal feelings. Options B, C, and D are more formal in tone and context.

105. What type of writing does the text belong to?

Answer: C. Narrative

Explanation:

The text describes a sequence of events ("he couldn't understand," "when he had set out that morning"), indicating a narrative style. It tells a story rather than explaining, describing, or arguing.

106. Which one is correctly punctuated?

Answer: C. I have never been to England; in fact, I have never been outside this country.

Explanation:

A semicolon is used correctly here to join two closely related independent clauses.

Commas are appropriately placed around "in fact."

Other options either misuse colons (A), omit necessary commas (B), or incorrectly place commas (D).

107. Which has correct capitalization?

Answer: B. The language I wanted to learn was Arabic, not French.

Explanation:

Proper nouns (names of languages) should always be capitalized. Only option B capitalizes both "Arabic" and "French" correctly.

108. Why might the sentence be included in a survey questionnaire?

Answer: D. Increasing response rate

Explanation:

Assuring respondents that their answers will remain confidential encourages participation and increases the likelihood of receiving responses. This is crucial for improving the response rate.

109. Which one is correctly punctuated?

Answer: B. The meeting ended at dawn; nothing had been decided.

Explanation:

A semicolon connects two independent clauses without needing separate sentences. Other options either lack proper punctuation (A and C) or unnecessarily split the thought into two sentences (D).

110. Which sentence has correct capitalization?

Answer: D. Sara and Hana first met at a school called Learning to Learn.

Explanation:

"Learning to Learn" is a proper noun (name of a school) and should be capitalized. All other options fail to capitalize it correctly.

111. What type of writing is the text most likely from?

Answer: B. Narrative

Explanation:

The text conveys emotions ("desire to redeem himself") and actions ("need to hit me"), suggesting a narrative style focused on storytelling.

Answer: C. Narrative

Explanation:

The lines describe sequential actions ("I took my passport out...put it in my bag"), which aligns with narrative writing.

113. What type of writing is the text most likely from?

Answer: B. Narrative

Explanation:

The text involves a character reflecting on returning to a town after years away, indicating a narrative style.

114. Which one is correctly punctuated?

Answer: A. "I have tried to sing dozens of times," she says, "but I can't."

Explanation:

Quotation marks enclose direct speech, and commas properly separate dialogue tags. Other options either omit necessary punctuation or misplace quotation marks.

115. Which sentence is correctly punctuated?

Answer: B. Last week... I think it was Monday... I sent them a complete report.

Explanation:

Ellipses (...) indicate pauses or uncertainty, fitting the context. Other options misuse punctuation or create awkward phrasing.

116. What type of writing is the text most likely from?

Answer: B. Descriptive

Explanation:

The text paints a vivid picture of someone's stinginess ("Giving out a penny... hurt like a knife"), characteristic of descriptive writing.

117. Which sentence is wrongly punctuated?

Answer: B. Sodere, I replied. "I was there for a year."

Explanation:

In option B, the placement of the period before the closing quotation mark is incorrect. Proper punctuation would place the period inside the quotes.

118. What ending could you use in a letter to your best friend?

Answer: C. Bye!

Explanation:

An informal farewell like "Bye!" suits a friendly tone. Formal endings like "Sincerely" or "Best wishes" are less appropriate for close friends.

119. Which word has correct spelling?

Answer: D. license

Explanation:

"Licence" is British English, while "license" is American English. Given the context, "license" is correct. Other options contain common misspellings.
